MAGISTERIAL DECISIONS.

In the light of recent magisterial decisions in cases affecting shipping interests generally that arrived at by Mr. H. E. Wodehouse in the Rodgers versus Reynell case which came before the Bench vesterday morning must be regarded as being one of the most extraordinary the many curious and, perhaps, questionable decisions yet given by that gentleman. The case was a very simp'e one. Captain W. REYNELL, master of the British barque Wm. Le Lacheur, was charged with having illegally left a British seaman, who had in March last signed on for a term of six months, in a foreign port in contravention of the provisions of the Merchants Shipping Act of 1854. The prosecution of course was at the instance of the sailor in question, who is a coloured your sits will find you out." man and a native of Mauritius, and the THE appointment is gazetted of Capt. W. Square, this evening, commencing at 730 REYNELL was in a quandary: he o'clock !remembered the case in which Captain EDWARDS of the steamship Zamberi was prosecuted for having detained men in frons on board his vessel while in Hongkong harbour; and d.bating whether he would risk probable complications by putting Rongers in Irons in a Spanish port or hand him bodily over to the local authorities, finally decided upon the latter course. And this course was perfectly legal and justifiable. The man Ropozza by his mutinous conduct had clearly broken the law of the land and Captain REVEELL was simply doing his duty in handing him over to the Spanish Authorities for fittir ? punishment. Whether, however, he was justified in sailing from Calagua and leaving Ropouss behind without first having ascertained if the authorities were willing to release the man, is another question, but looking at the matter in any and every possible light Captain REYNELL was but technically guilty; and it is the rule in British courts of law that technical offences are but nominally punished. It THE care that the United States Government was only on the 13th instant that Captain Dick, of the passenger steamer Hankow, was prosecuted in the same court and before the same magistrate for an offence serious in its possible, or rather probable, consequences, that of having left the waters of the Colony with his vessel undermanned. patched from London yesterday, and the following is from an article, that appeared in the Telegraph on the 25th April last :-but it is high time that la belle France was signalled to cry "a halt" in these aggressions and oppressions of petty Eastern Kingdoms of which she has grown so fond; though as regards Slam there is not the least likeliheed that she will be permitted to seriously interfere with or barrass it, its trade or its people. British, American and German interests are too important and Siam's relations with those countries are of too friendly a nature to permit of hostile measures being taken by the stronger power for the simple purpose of enforcing its selfish alms. What concerns us most, however, and what we protest against is that any repetition of the shameless actions of '84 and '85 and consequent partial paralysing of trade in Eastern waters by a nation whose legitimate commerce stands third or fourth on the list of European trading nations, should be allowed. And this is what is occurring in Bangkok to-day without any guarantee that things may not drit from had to worse. The Siamese, like most Asiatic nations, are fit subjects for success'ul bullying, but after all it is mainly British interests and British commerce that is made to suffer and in their defence this timely note of warning is now sounded."-And events are now occurring which augur that the warning was not sounded to vain. REAR-ADMIRAL Harmony, late commander of the U.S. squadron on the China station, has been interviewed in Frisco on the subject of the Geary Act and its probable bearing on the relations between China and the United States. The gallant Admiral is of the opinion that the Chinese all along the Yangise river are greatly irritated over the Geary act, and that there will be an outbreak should it be enforced. The hatted of foreigners along this great river dates for back from the origin of the Geary act. PROBABLY the most remarkable monument to be found in the world is the Gordons' obelisk at Malta. If there are other monuments of equally curious interest we, observes the Corlon Gaselle, should be glad to have particulars of them. The obelisk is erected to commemorate a mill tiry event which haprimed at Malta in 1881. The 75th (Stielingshire) Regiment, during their stay in Malte, were renamed the 1st Battallon Gordon Highlanders, and took to wearing the same costume as the gand Regiment, the Gordon Highlanders. the Marylebone (London) Police-court. A lady in affluent circumstances, was summoned for failing to support her mother, that old lady being penniless and an inmate of the workhouse. SUPREME COURT.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

(Before Chief Justice Fielding Clarke.) July 28th.

THE PUISNE JUDGE.

Owing to the indisposition of Mr. Ackroyd, Poisne Judge, the beach was occupied by the Chief Justice, Mr. Fielding Clarke.

CARVALHO U. LANGLEY. J. A. de Carvalho sued A. Langley for $372.90, one quarter's rent and taxes for house No. YI Gage Street. Mr. H. J. Gedge (Johnson, Stokes, and Master) was for the plaintiff and Mr. H.

Holmes for the defendant. Mr. Gedge sild there was a lease drawn up between the parties, signed by defendant, dated 7th December, 1892; rent had been paid up to the end of June, after which defendant left the houre. I laintiff now sued for the current quarter's rent, r hich under the lease should be paid in advance Plaintiff then gave evidence, proving defendout's signature to the lease. Mr. Holmes was about to cross-examine the

His lordship said he had not seen any notice of special defence being raised against the lease. Mr. Holmes said it had been served on plaintiff's solicitors, which was all that the code required. His lordship thought the notice ought certainly to be filed in court, otherwise he could not hear any special defence. He would adjourn unti to-morrow, and as the code did not state that such notice must be fi'ed, he would not order defendant to pay the costs of the day.

LAW COSTS.

In'a small uncontested suit, Mr. Wi kinrou appeared for plaintiff and obtained judgment for the amount claimed, with costs; which led his lordship to remark :- There ought to be some with Messrs. Waterlow whereby that firm arrangement by which a defendant could consupplies photographs of every section and sent to judgment before the Registrar, and save component part of men-of-war composing the costs; because it very often happens, where an appearance in Court is necessary, the costs mount up to more than the debt.

was expecting a remittance from Penn. He | night's issue :wished to be released from gaol.

Judgment was given for the amount claimed, with costs, and an order for telease from gaol was issued.

AN UNFORTUNATE CASE.

Mrs. Stalnfield sued W. Podwell for $150 for hoard and lodging, due several months ago. Defendant admitted the debt, and said he was willing to pay as soon as he could get the money out of the estate of Lnng & Co., tallors, now in liquidation; he had a preferential claim of $1,100, for wages, but could not get the money vet. Heaffired the plaintiff a bond entitling her to a first claim on whatever he should realise out of the estate.

His lordship advised the parties to see Mr. Bruce Shepherd, the official assignee, and try to arrange the matter. After consultation with the official assignee, the parties were unable to agree, and judgment was given for the plaintiff accordingly; his lordship comforting the defendant with the essurance that "if you are put in prison, you can apply for release at once, you know."

"PRESENTATION OF MEDALS.

At the Central Station this afternoon, 1,800 paraded under orders of the Captain Superinten-471 . 2.434 dent for the presentation of medals. Among the speciators were Major-General Barker, Capt. Thomas, Mr. Mitchell-Innes, Mr. G. Sharp, Mrs. May, and Miss Barker. Chief Inspector Mathieson put the men through a number of evolutions, after which the Captain Superintendent formed them into a square, and said :-

Before I present these meds is I should like to make a few semarks. In the first place I should | say that His Ex-ellency the Governor has ex-Britisher, and also the natural inheritance of the Indiana and Chinese, still I would remind you that there is much scope for the exhibition of a far higher ideal of courage, and that is moral courage, in strict devotion to duty, the preservation of truth and integrity, the maintenance of "self-respect, and the maintenance of the honour of the corps, I may say that as long as I have the honour of commanding this force, shall always deem the exhibition of these virtues as deserving of a far higher reward than mere spontaneous exhibitions of acts of gallantry. I do not cast any aspersions on pluck; it is a five thing, but to attain these qualities of virtue which I. have coumerated, I maintain, requires a higher degree of pluck than say, merely jumping into the harbour to save man's life ... (Applause.). The Captala-Sugerintendent then presented the medals as follows, adding a few exceedingly well-chosen remarks in each case:-

Inspector Stanton, Chief of the Detective De partment, first-class medal; Inspectors Hennessy and Corcoran second-class medals Inspectors Mackin and Gauld third-class medals Inspectors Mann, Bremner and Kemp, one Indian Sergeant and one Chinese Sergeant fourth-class medals.

in Paris, and a reply was received that the order directing the entrance of these boats into the river would at once be countermanded.

The French Minister at this capital also agreed that the French vessels should be informed of our objections and required not to come up. He also saked at the same time for a steamer that an officer might be sent out to inform the vessels of the state of affairs: This was duly granted. Notwithstanding all this, however, the two versels entered the river and proceeded up to the Chula Chom Klao fort. The officers in charge fired a blank shot as a signal in the usual way. The two French vessels took no notice of this but returned the fire, after which there followed a general firing on both sides, the two vessels finally proceeding up the river and anchoring at the French Legation. We have reason to believe that the cause of all this has been due to misunderstanding, as the telegram from: Paris clearly states that their Foreign Minister bas expressed almself as harbouring no intentions of doing anything calculated to give offence to H. M. the King. Let the people therefore not be alarmed that a state of war will arise in Bangkok. The three French men-of-war now in the river, should they attempt to inflict any harm would not surely be able to accomplish it. We cannot suppose that the 300 men in their boats would undertake to land and attack the numerous soldiers who have to defend our populous city.

The most serious phase of the matter at present needing our attention is that the people not knowing the exact condition of affairs may be aroused to fear and paris. Ueder these circumstances his Majesty has been pleased to order local government to take the necessary messures to have private and public property protected against a possible up-rising of evil characters. His Majesty has himself inspected the troops at their various posts in the city, and was great'y pleased to notice that all measures have been taken to preserve the peace and guard the lives and property of his subjects. Conferences are at present being carried on between H. M.'s Government, and the Government of the French Republic in Bangkok and in Paris, as may be seen from the diplomatic corresponderce relating to this subject already made public by print. Let all people consider the matter in a rational manner with the information set forth herewith. Let no one b: undely alarmed; but let each preserve peace and conduct himself in an orderly manner.

Jones, and eleven men, forming part of the crew of the abandoned British ship Derbyshire, bound from Talcahuano to the United Kingdom. Captain Jones gives a graphic account of the disaster which befell the Derbyshire, making it necessary to abandon her in' mid'ocean. "On April 26th," said be, "we were overtaken by a terrible gale. We were in latitude 53 deg. 57 min, south, laugitude 8r deg. 40 min. west, when, without warning, there was a light clap of thunder and a terrific sen was shipped. The wheel was smathed to splinters. The standards supporting the compass, screwed with cooper screws five or six inches long, were swept naide like straws. I was next the wheel and was swept to the rail. By a lucky chance I was near the rigging, which I grasped and clung to as long as I was cor scious. Another sea came and beat me senseless and threw me across the deck, where two of the men caught me.

"The wheel being lost the ship became unmanageable, and she came to and shipred heavy seas. Everything movable was swept overboard. Daiing all the night it blew a hurricand and all the sails were blown away. Braces, lifts, stays and backstays were carried away. The ship lay in the trough, laboring and straining heavily. The sea was running high and the wind was something terrible.

"In the morning we found that the lamps were broken, and later in the day that the fresh-water pumps had burst. The cold was intense and the ship was at the mercy of the elements. For six days we were buffeted by the gale. On April 20th the cable, forecastle and after decks were completely tora out. We poured oil on the water to break the terrible shock of the billows. but in spite of all the ship rolled and lurched. threatening every moment to go to the bottom, We took refuge in the lockers and hold, anywhere to escape the rush and force of the cen.

"On Sunday, the 3oth, we found the forepeak full of water and the hands were employed in i tisoning the cargo. The lower rigging began to give way and our hope was almost gone. The galley was washed away and we had little to eat. The next day, in the midst of our trouble, our sudder was broken and we gave ourselves up for lost, momentarily expecing to go down, but the old ship role out the day, and at 0.30 o'clock that night wo sighted a ship and made frantic signals to her, burning rockets, blue lights and torches, "Our efforts were at last successful and the ship here down towards us.
